

SHOOTING ASSIGNMENT- Pattern

Your assignment is to find and shoot patterns. Any series of lines creates a pattern.

Look above your head, down at the ground, as well as straight ahead. Try to find subjects that are primarily patterns, not just have pattern in them. Have pattern fill the frame of the photograph. Try to have nothing in your photograph but pattern.

Though your assignment is to shoot pattern, you may want to consider some other qualities of line as well, such as direction or structure. See if you can add them into a photograph without losing sight of your primary goal. Use these other qualities to strengthen the pattern and not to detract from it. For example, you may want to use perspective so your pattern recedes into the distance, suggesting direction. Or you may find a series of small patterns contained in a large one, creating structure.
